FAITHLESS AT FORTY

Swift Pace of the Princess Louise of Coburg

WHOSE FLAGRANT DOINGS

Have Been for Years the Astonishment of Europe.

Chicago, April 15.—The Tribune says: "The Truth Concerning Princess Louise of Coburg" is the title of a publication which has just appeared in Vienna, and which professes, "upon the basis of authentic information," to give actual facts relating to the latest scandal among the royalists of Europe.

Princess Louise is the eldest child of the gay King of Belgium, and after her many scandalous adventures she is now in a sort of imprisonment in Castle Laeken, one of the royal Belgian estates. She was born in 1858 and married in 1875 to Prince Philipp of Coburg, cousin-german to the reigning Duke of Saxe-Coburg. The Vienna publication, it is said, is inspired by Dr. Bachrach, an Austrian government counselor, who is the attorney of Prince Philipp. It is but just to state this fact because the publication seems to throw the whole responsibility for the disclosures in the Ducal household upon the vivacious Princess.

The union between Prince Philipp and Princess Louise was at the beginning a happy one, but the state of consanguinity did not last long because, as Dr. Bachrach claims, the Princess began to indulge in reckless expenditures for her wardrobe, in one instance ordering shoes which she could not have used in ten years. This would have been borne with patience by Prince Philipp, who is rich, but in the second of 1887, when the princely couple sojourned in the Riviera, the Princess, then at the matronly age of 21, suddenly began to show an uncommon attachment for a Lieutenant Geza Matzschke-Keglevich, a Croat who served in the Austrian army, and whose acquaintance she made through her sister, the widow of Crown Prince Rudolf of Austria.

Such attachments are considered quite "chic," as modern European high society goes, and, being a daughter of the King of Belgium, society would have taken Princess Louise's fondness for the Sarumian cavalier as a matter of course had it not been for the fact that the cavalier himself treated his relations with the Princess quite too cavalierly.

Keglevich, who had nothing beyond his lieutenant's commission and his grand descent, first prevailed upon the Princess to start quite a stable and to make him a sort of master of the horse. Between him and Prince Philipp there was no official connection whatever. Two years ago Princess Louise appeared in Carlsbad at the height of the season, and Dr. Bachrach says, her relations with Lieutenant Keglevich had assumed a character which was incompatible with the matrimonial pledge. The Princess indulged in the most extravagant expenditure of money in the Bohemian resort in which Keglevich joined with great zest. He took it upon himself as chamberlain of the Princess, to exact official calls from the nobility of Carlsbad, and acted throughout as if he and not Prince Philipp was the lawful husband of Princess Louise. From Carlsbad the couple made journeys to Paris, Cannes, London and Nice, spending money lavishly.

Finally, Prince Philipp, who is reported to be somewhat dense, could be no longer in doubt of the character of the relations between his wife and Keglevich, and he challenged the latter to a duel. The Prince was severely wounded and was laid up for a month. At about this time came the discovery of drafts for enormous sums forged by Keglevich. The sister of Princess Louise, the Crown Princess Stefania of Austria, was laid up with the grip which, turned into pneumonia, and the life of the Crown Princess was despaired of. She was not permitted to attend to any business, and this was the cause of the discovery of the forged drafts.

While Princess Louise and Keglevich were having a gay time in Paris, Prince Philipp had found it advisable to advertise in the Paris newspapers that he would not be responsible for any debts created by his wife. Subsequently he announced that actual separation had taken place and that divorce would follow in due time. This, of course, ruined the credit of the eccentric Princess, who has no money in her own right, and whose allowance by her royal father is not at all of royal magnitude.

Naturally the Princess got into the clutches of the shylocks, but the latter demanded a security which she could not give. The drafts manufactured by Keglevich for Princess Louise, the signature of Crown Princess Stefania was suggested and found acceptable. It was supplied by Keglevich upon drafts amounting to over 600,000 guineas. When Crown Princess Stefania fell dangerously sick the money lenders demanded that her signatures be

IS IT CURABLE?

A Question Often Asked by Those Afflicted With Piles.

Is a strained joint curable? Is local inflammation curable? Of course, if properly treated, it is curable.

People become afflicted with piles and ask some old "chronic" who has always persisted in the wrong treatment and naturally discourage them by telling them that their case is hopeless.

They in turn discourage others and thus a disease that might in every case be cured by skillful and careful handling is allowed to sap the energy of thousands who might free themselves of the trouble in a few days.

Pyramid Pile Cure will cure the most aggravated case of hemorrhoids in an astonishingly short time. It relieves the congested parts, reduces the tumorous growth, no matter how large, allays the inflammation and stops the itching or itching at once.

Thousands who have resorted to expensive surgical treatment have been cured by the Pyramid Pile Cure—in a number of instances persons who have spent months in a hospital under a pile specialist.

It is a remedy that none need fear to apply even to the worst aggravated, swollen and inflamed hemorrhoidal tumors. This remedy is no longer an experiment, but a medical certainty. It is manufactured by the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich.

Druggists sell it at 50 cents per box. It is fast becoming the most popular pile cure the country has ever known and druggists everywhere are ordering it for their customers.

verified. Then, of course, came the disclosure. This one circumstance characterizes the whole financial transactions, for the surety no doubt knew at the time that the signatures were forged but they calculated that the Crown Princess would acknowledge them to avoid a scandal. Keglevich, so the semi-official statement continues, finding that his forgeries were discovered, fled with Princess Louise to Nice. At the gambling table in Monte Carlo the Croatian lost his last penny in a rapid attempt to retrieve his fortune. In the meantime the divorce proceedings had progressed so far that papers were to be served upon Princess Louise, but it was found that she and Keglevich and their entire entourage had disappeared from Nice without leaving a trace. Dilettante search finally resulted in locating the couple on an estate of Keglevich's step-father in Croatia, and there Dr. Bachrach, the attorney of Prince Philipp, succeeded in obtaining an interview with the Princess, in which the legal stipulations of the divorce were agreed upon.

The military courts of Austria had been officially notified of Keglevich's forgeries and took up the investigation. Keglevich, who had every reason to fear the secret procedure of the Austrian court martial, attempted to have his case submitted to the civil authorities, but when he came to Agrim, in Croatia, for this purpose, he was arrested by the officers of the garrison court, tried in secret, and was sentenced to six years in the penitentiary, stripped of his nobility and military rank, and now makes show in Moellerdorf.

Princess Louise was duly notified under the pending divorce proceedings to return to her place of residence, which was Vienna. She complied promptly and appeared with the lady of her court in the Austrian capital, but she refused to return to the palace of Prince Philipp. She did consent, however, to remain for some time in a sanatorium. There her mental condition was inquired into, and, to the surprise of everybody conversant with the scandal, it was found that there was no occasion for continued restraint in the institution. The Princess, however, voluntarily went to a sanatorium near Vienna, where Prince Philipp paid 500 guilders monthly for her maintenance, until the royal father of the erratic dame insisted that she take her residence at Castle Laeken.

The change of residence was made after the civil courts of Austria had decreed absolute divorce, and, to the great consternation of high and highest personages upon the plebeian ground of unfaithfulness, it having been established to the satisfaction of the civil tribunal that there was no ground for divorce "on account of mental aberration of the respondent."

These Princess Louise and Lieutenant Keglevich are divorced, for the time being at least, but Prince Philipp, rich though he is, has a lot of financial trouble on his hands on account of his erratic spouse that was. Princess Louise succeeded in making doles to the amount of about 500,000 guilders in silver in about 40 cents within two years. Of this amount Prince Philipp has assumed 1,000,000; the latter represents the claims of the shylocks.

At a critical time the compromising forged drafts had to be got hold of at any price, and the Prince's agents succeeded in doing this by giving Prince Philipp's note for 1,000,000 guilders to the syndicate usurers. This note is payable within the coming year. If it is not redeemed, for which there is every probability, complaint must be made at the court of appeals' office of the imperial house of Austria, and this complaint will undoubtedly be made. The other creditors will also have to apply to the same arbiter, and hence there is a good chance that Princess Louise's escapades will be heard from for some time to come.

STANDING UP FOR ASPIROZ

Mexico Reminds Jonathan That the City of Maximilian Was His Over.

City of Mexico, April 15.—The report received here from Washington that ambassadors and foreign ministers at that capital were disposed to solicit Mexican Ambassador Aspiras on account of his prosecution of so-called Emperor Maximilian, has aroused much interest here in official and social circles. The whole matter appears excessively absurd in this country, for the imperial party has long ceased to be a factor in politics, and many prominent imperialists have in the past held or are now occupying official positions under the administration of President Diaz. At that remains of the imperial dream is sentimental and has no bearing on political affairs. A proof of this is that men who served in Maximilian's imperial court have been signally honored by the republic, that officers near to his person have taken positions in the army of the republic and are faithfully and loyally serving the country at the present time. It is true that Austria has never resumed diplomatic relations with Mexico, but the king of the Belgians, brother of Empress Charlotte, maintains a liaison here and has decorated the president of the republic. It is felt that certain diplomats at Washington who resented Mexico's appointing an ambassador, on the ground that this country is not one of the great powers, have made a request of the Maximilian incident to put an affront on Mexico through her official representative, but the relations of Mexico with the United States are of great commercial importance and do not concern Europe. Ambassador Aspiras has the respect of men of all parties and shades of political opinion here.

Killed His Wife and Himself.

St. Louis, Mo., April 15.—A special to the Post-Dispatch from Birmingham, Ala., says: Near Channahville last night a young farmer, Andrew Mack, shot his wife and then himself, both dying at the home of his father-in-law, William Weir, a well-to-do citizen. Mack had been obtaining money under false pretenses and his wife had left him, going to her father's home. Last night Mack impetuously shot his wife and then himself, both dying at the home of his father-in-law, William Weir, a well-to-do citizen. Mack had been obtaining money under false pretenses and his wife had left him, going to her father's home. Last night Mack impetuously shot his wife and then himself, both dying at the home of his father-in-law, William Weir, a well-to-do citizen.

SAW THE SHOTS FIRED

Eye Witnesses to the Killing of George D. Saxton

IDENTIFY MRS. GEORGE

Though None Too Clearly, as the Murderers.

Canton, O., April 15.—Attorneys for the state regard this as their red letter day in the trial of Mrs. George. They produced eye witnesses to the firing of the two shots which took effect in Saxton's body. One of these claimed to have identified Mrs. George positively as having fired the shots and others testified positively that the woman she saw do the shooting closely resembled Mrs. George, whom she knows only as she has seen her in the court room. The state also qualified a witness on Mrs. George's handwriting to identify a letter which they want to introduce in evidence. A third point which pleased the state was the admission of a police officer who found a revolver, although he was not allowed to tell how he found it, to the full extent of the details asked him. They wanted to prove that Mayor Rice, as counsel for Mrs. George, told him where to find the weapon and sent him after it.

The trial opened this morning with Mrs. Mattle Grimes on the stand for cross-examination. She explained that she especially observed Mrs. George's flushed face when she passed her an hour after the shooting had been committed, because she, the witness, had heard of Saxton's death and had been told of the relations between Saxton and Mrs. George.

Policeman E. E. Willis was called to say that Mayor Rice was Mrs. George's counsel the morning after her arrest, but the evidence was excluded. Mrs. Oberlin, with whom Mrs. George roomed, described Mrs. George's appearance and dress when she left the house the morning of Saxton's death.

Mrs. Christine Eckroft presented startling testimony. She said she went to her window on the night of the murder, after hearing two shots, and saw a person bending forward, who fired two shots toward the ground and then ran away through a vacant lot. She identified the person as Mrs. George. Witnesses said she had previously often noticed a woman walking in front of the Althouse residence, whom she later learned was Mrs. George. Mrs. Eckroft is the first witness claiming to recognize the person who did the shooting.

In cross-examination the defense sought to show that the witness did not know Mrs. George well enough to identify her, and that it was too dark to recognize a person across the street. Mrs. Eckroft on cross-examination said she had been using morphine for nine or ten years, but for the last six months only took it every other day. She said she had always done her housework and managed her household.

Mrs. Laura Huzar of Cleveland, a step-daughter of Mrs. Eckroft, testified as an eye-witness to the firing of two shots. She described the person who fired them, and said that from what she had seen of Mrs. George since, the defendant resembled the one she saw fire the shot. In figure, carriage and general appearance.

Michael Barr, the postoffice clerk who yesterday failed to prove his capacity for identifying Mrs. George's handwriting, answered other questions today which made his identification of a letter admissible, and this will be formally offered after the defense have had opportunity to read it.

Police Sergeant William J. Hester told of a conversation he had with Mrs. George in which she talked of having Saxton and Mrs. Althouse arrested. She told him they could get into the house through the coal hole. He also testified to taking charge of Saxton's body the night of his death and of the police work on the case. He said that on Monday morning after the murder he had found a revolver at the corner of High and South streets. He was not allowed to tell why he looked there for it, but had previously said in interviews that Mayor Rice, who was Mrs. George's counsel, had told him.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.

A Pleasant, Simple, Safe but Effective Cure for It.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloated sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the lungs and heart and difficult breathing, headache, flake appetite, nervousness and a general played-out and languid feeling. There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue, and if the secret of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure for this common and obnoxious disease is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily and thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach.

To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do, and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared. According to Dr. Harrison, the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet composed of Dextrose, Aspartic, Pepsin, a Little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids.

These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and, not being a patent medicine, can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

WHAT STATISTICS HAVE PROVEN!

What Medical Science Has Accomplished.

THIS GREAT DISCOVERY IS OFFERED FREE TO EAGLE READERS.

Statistics prove that more people are brought to the grave by disease of the kidneys and bladder than by any other disease.

Kidney trouble is in itself so insidious and deceptive that thousands have some form of it and never suspect it.

For many years medical science has been trying to discover some remedy that would positively overcome these dangerous troubles.

But not until recently was the discovery made, Doctor Kilmer, the eminent physician and scientist, after years of study and research, and after test on test that never varied in the grand result, announced the discovery of Swamp-Root, which has proven itself a most wonderful cure for all diseases of the kidneys and bladder.

While Swamp-Root has proved such a remarkable success in curing kidney and bladder diseases, it has also proved equally invaluable in the cure of blood diseases, rheumatism, liver and stomach troubles, and in the regulation and cure of all uric acid troubles.

Swamp-Root has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work, in private practice, among the helpless too poor to purchase relief, and has proved a successful remedy in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of the Eagle, who have not already tried it, may have a free sample bottle of Swamp-Root, and thus test for themselves its wonderful properties.

If you will send your name and full address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., a sample bottle will be sent absolutely free by mail, postpaid, also a booklet telling more about Swamp-Root and containing some of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from people who owe their good health, in fact their very lives, to the wonderful curative properties of Swamp-Root.

This great medical discovery is for sale at most drug stores in fifty-cent and one dollar sizes. Don't make any mistake, but make a note of the name, SWAMP-ROOT, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and remember that it is prepared only by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

If you take advantage of this generous offer and write for a free sample bottle, where it was and had sent him after it, but that a second thought he decided not to give the weapon to the mayor, because he might get into trouble, and he told the mayor he had not found it. Later he gave it to the prosecuting attorney and told him his story.

He went to Mrs. George in jail and told her he had found herself over that she hid, at the corner of South and High streets, the one place he had sent him after, and he asked her to do with it. She told him to see Mr. Welby, her attorney, and then come back. The revolver was offered and identified and the bullets found in Saxton's body were shown to be of the same calibre.

The cross-examination was under way when court adjourned until Monday. The witness had said that he was not under the pay of the state and was not being reimbursed by the state for the pay he lost through losing his place on the police force as a result of his action in this case, Mayor Rice having the control of the police by virtue of his office. Mr. Hester also denied that he had prepared and held the story to boom his campaign for office.

ROUNDING UP A QUORUM

How the Democrats at Jefferson City Passed the Nesbitt Bill.

St. Louis, Mo., April 15.—A special to the Post-Dispatch from Jefferson City, Mo., says: The house today passed the Nesbitt election bill, a Democratic caucus measure, by compelling the attendance of a quorum. When the bill, which changes the election system of St. Louis and Kansas City, came up for passage there was a scramble among the Republicans present to leave the house. Speaker Wood ordered the sergeant-at-arms to close the doors, and the measure was then passed.

HOW DREYFUS TOOK THE NEWS

That a Revision of His Case Had Been Granted.

Paris, April 15.—The French public this morning the report of Governor Daudet of Cayenne, of the revision of his case. Dreyfus, it is said, had written to his wife that he wished to commit suicide. When asked to testify he had nothing to say—said he did not remember anything. He came told a physician who was attending him. "They are afraid my family will be afraid the infamous insinuating police; they are afraid the Kaiser will get to know of it; but they are afraid that my wife will take our two children and throw herself at the feet of the emperor and ask him for justice." Dreyfus told Governor Daudet that he had not anything to say to the court of revision. On November 26, 1896, he wrote the governor that when he was tried he asked M. Catinet-Ferrier, then president of the French republic, for a public trial, which M. Catinet-Ferrier promised him under conditions which Dreyfus swore to observe, but publicity was not granted, though he does not know why. Dreyfus repeatedly said that his defense was in the hands of his wife and Lawyer Demange.
